The Duteous Day Now Closeth

Paul Gerhardt

Heinrich Isaac

The duteous day now clos eth, each all long B eath, breaks.

Now all the heav en ly splen dor forth in star light tender from myri ad worlds un missed God's lov ing kind ness and plunged us into wood: let us, as night is falling, on known; and we, this mar vel see ing, for strife; yet when life's day is over, shall wood:

get our self ish be ing for dearth's fair night dis cov er the God our Mak er call ing, give thanks to him, the Giv er good.

joy of beau ty not our own.

fields of ever lasting life.
